New Numbers

The City College of the City University of New York reported incomplete undergraduate degree figures in the Research & Graduate Study issue (March 1979). The correct total of undergraduate degrees awarded in 1977-78 was 267.

Correction

In the April 1979 issue, p. 729, table 3 should have included Texas A&M and North Carolina State among the ten schools reporting the highest number of bachelor's degrees in engineering.

Also in the April 1979 issue, on p. 763, R.T. Stefani's letter should read, "The GPA measures recall/retention in the academic environment. Although hard to define, success seems to be a state described by some combination of recall/retention in industry (job competence), responsibility, and income level." (Italicized words were omitted in the original.)
